It was a trip I'll never forget.

Five years ago my family and I went to an excellent journey all around our country. It was bizarre sometimes but I really liked it.

We did lots of photos there but I want to tell you about one of them that reminds me of the most vivid impression of that trip.

Our journey was on the first half of September so the weather was pretty good but all of us were in warm clothes because it was rather cold. I remember that I extremely liked my look. I had a nice hair-do completed by my mum, lovely jeans and a sweater and a soft scarf.

Back to the story of the photo my mum showed me a flower that I had never seen before. 'Don't you know that flower? It is a daisy!' my mum said. I felt myself ignorant and confused a bit but mum laughed and said that I can't know everything and that was normal. 'You'll become the most smart person if you want because your life completely depends on you' Her phrase was so challenging and I remembered it for my whole life.
